KAISER AND ARCHDUKE

So grave was the situation at Lemperg before the Teutons drove the Russian forces before them that the German kaiser deemed it advisable to appear on the scene of action in person. The Archduke Frederick of Austria was on a similar mission to urge the Austrian troops on. After the evacuation by the Russians the kaiser and the archduke met to felicitate one another on the valor of their men.

SPELLING IS HARD TO LEARN

Tests in Public Schools Show Surpris ing Results, Says Federal Bureau of Education.

Washington.- "Seven out of every 100 third grade public school children cannot spell 'has,' said a statement is sued by the United States bureau of "This and other curious evidences of the special problems inherent in the teaching of spelling are brought out by Dr. Leonard P. Ayres of the Russell Sage foundation in a study just published." Doctor Ayres has had made a test from 1,000 words that constitute 90 per cent of the English language ordinarily used. He has found that "spelling ability" is easily and scientifically determined. For example, nine words of most frequent use, "the," "in," "so," "no," "now," "man," "ten," "bed" and "top," revealed that second grade pupils, on am average, spelled correctly 94 per cest of these words. At the other extreme of the scale the words "judg-ment," "recommend" and "allege" were found to be spelled correctly 50 per cent of eighth grade

WISDOM AFTER THE EVENT

Ordinary Man So Constituted That It "I Told You So."

How wise men are after the event! It matters not how sagely a project is planned, or how vigorously its execution is pushed, if it turn out ill; nor how ill considered and quixotic it be, if it turn out well. Failure blinds us to the merits of any enterprise, and success to its folly.

It is useless for the unsuccessful man to show that it was through no fault of his own, but from unexpected causes which no human agacity could have foreseen or provided for, that he falled—in short, that he deserved success. The result shows that "there was a screw loose somewhere," either in the plan or execution, and his explanations fall on deaf ears.

What aggravates our impatience with the plausible blockhead who falls is that we could have told him at the start how visionary his enterprise was, or how, by different management, he might have succeeded.

Had not Alexander the Great been interrupted for three days in his march on Persia by a sickness caused by a cold bath in the River Cydnus, he would have encountered with his small force the overwhelming army of the enemy on the plains instead of the narrew mountain passes of Cilicia, and would therefore in all probability have been defeated instead of winning the great victory that founded the third monarchy in the world.

How, in the former event, would the double-chinned wineacres of Macedon have shaken there heads at the fool-hardiness of the young king's expedition! And how sagely would all subsequent historians have declared that the catastrophe was what every sane man must have expected!

"Post Office" Used by Pioneer Easily the Oldest Building Used for That Purpose in America.

The pioneers of the Northwest often made use of huge trees hollowed out by fire or decay. Some of these "tree houses" they occupied as temporary residences. Others they used as shelters for stock or as primitive barns. Only one, however, ever had the distinction of being a United States post office. That stump is in Clallam county, in the state of Washington.

In early days the settlers were wide-ly scattered, and it was a long journey over rough trails to the post office. Carriers could do no more than leave mail at some central point. The big cedar stump, 12 feet in diameter and reduced to a shell by fire, was a base from which a number of trails radiated. By common consent it became the post office for a wide region. The settlers put on a roof of cedar shakes and nailed boxes round its interior, which they marked with their names. There was a large box for the out-going mail. There were no locks, but the mails were never tampered with.

This primitive post office was used for more than a year. It has been carefully preserved and is annually visited by hundreds of interested sight-The stump is believed to be over 2,000 years old, which clearly es-tablishes its right to the distinction of being the oldest post office building in America!—Youth's Companion.

Submarines Dive Slowly. Many people have the idea that as soon as a submarine sees an enemy, the officer in command gives a sharp order, and almost before it has left his lips the submarine is diving beneath the waves. As a matter of fact the very latest submarines of the "F" class take a clear five minutes before they can become submerzed. Many of the older submarines took ten minutes to a quarter of an hour to sink.

The reason why a submarine cannot dive quickly, like a fish, is that the water which must be let into her tanks to make her heavy enough to sink must be let in comparatively slowly. If it were let in with a rush the chances are the vessel would not go down on an even keel, but would heel over and be in great danger of disaster. If water, too, were let in too quickly there is a danger of letting in too much and in that case the submarine would sink like a stone to the bottom of the sea. The water that is let in the ballast tanks is just sufficient to "balance" the ves sel in the sea, without rising or sink-

Preventing Train Wrecks. When a troop or provision train is traveling through an enemy's country every precaution is taken to guard against its being blown up or destroyed in some way. Occasionally another train is sent ahead to clear the way for the one following, but more often two trucks loaded with worthless materials, are placed in front of the engine and act as a sort of "dummy Should explosive or mine be placed on the line these trucks come into contact with it before the engine and bear the brunt of the dam-They are, of course, blown to pieces, but they are worth little, and the engine remains intact.

Recently at one of the luncheons of the City Club of Philadelphia there was read an extract from the auto-biography of Benjamin Franklin which was raid to describe the first instance of street cleaning by con tract in Pt Indelphia. The incident is interesting aire, acvever, as illustrat ing citizen co constion in its origina simplicity

"One day," Franklin wrote, "I found a poor industrious man, who was will ing to ancertake accoing the pave ment clean by sweeping it twice a week, carrying off the dirt from be fore all the neighbors' doors, for the sum of six-pence per month, to be paid by each bouse. I then wrote and printed a paper setting torth the advantages to the neighborhood that might be obtained by this small ex pense . . I sent one of these papers to each house and in a day or two went around to see who would sub-scribe an agreement to cay these six and for a time well executed. raised a general desire to save all the streets paved, and made the people more willing to subscribe to a tre tor that purpose "-The Survey
